

October, 2015

Federal Election 2015: Analysis

Canada's Incoming Government on Sustainable Development

A look at the response of the incoming majority Liberal government on the question of Sustainable Development Goals.

Read More

Where is Canada heading on International Development: What we learnt from the debates, platforms and public opinion

Assessment of party platforms and a look at Canada's planned and projected spending on international development.

Read More

Analysis of the three major parties' stance on Canada's role in international development.

Read More

CIDP Data:

Foreign Aid

Trade

Investment

Migration

Development Analysis

WHAT WE READ

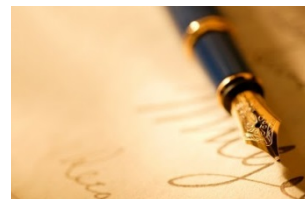

Assessing Canada's Global Engagement Gap

by Robert Greenhill and Meg McQuillan

The authors assess Canada's global engagement by looking at combined spending on official development assistance and defense.

Read this Piece

Time to Make Ourselves Useful

by Roland Paris

Does Merging Improve Aid Efficiency?

Rachael Calleja examines whether merging formerly autonomous aid agencies into larger foreign affairs ministries and bureaucracies leads to administrative efficiency and lower costs.

Read More

Sustainable Development Goals 2015: Unpacked

On September 25-27, 2015, the 193-Member United Nations General Assembly formally adopted Agenda 2030 for Sustainable Development. We explore what the new global agenda is and what it means for Canada.

Read the Series

Bringing universal global goals to life in Canada

Shannon Kindornay takes a look at Canada's position on embracing the universality of the new development agenda.

Read More

Agenda 2030: 'Transformational' or still millions 'left behind'?

John Sinclair takes a closer look at the successor framework to the Millennium Development Goals, at a special UN Summit. Read More

Time to Process the New UN Global Goals

Fraser-Reilly King explores the process of envisioning the new development agenda. Read More

An open letter on foreign policy to the 2015 federal election winner.

Read this Piece

Canada would be foolish not to join the TPP

by Patrick Leblond

A look at Canada's supply-managed dairy industry and rules of origin in the automotive sector.

Read this piece

Why poor countries should avoid the SDGs

by Philipp Krause

How the SDGs might be bad news for developing countries.

Read this piece

Projecting progress: Reaching the SDGs by 2030

by Susan Nicolai, Chris Hoy, Tom Berliner and

How to Achieve the Sustainable Development Goals: The Trillion (and More) Dollar Question

Yiagadeesen Samy takes a look at why finding the right finances for the new agenda is just as important as setting it. Read More

Canada and Climate Change: Earning a Seat at the Global Table

The Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) contain all the needed elements for Canada and the world to take meaningful action on climate. Read More

The Health of Our Global Community: Canada's responsibility at home and abroad

Sarah Kennell assesses how Canada can highlight MNCH within the new global development agenda. Read More

Thomas Aedy

This ODI report offers a systematic attempt to project progress across the full SDG agenda over the next 15 years.

Read this piece

Stay Connected

Follow us on twitter

cidpnsi.ca

Contact Us:

Email: cidp@outlook.com
Aniket Bhushan | aniket.bhushan@carleton.ca
5306 River Building
1125 Colonel By Drive
Ottawa, K1S 5B6

Subscribe